

Today is a day to remember. In the early morning, our infantry set out for the invasion of Lindisfarne. Our troops were strong and ready for war. With viking symbols all over our ships, we feared nothing. We crashed across the seas like it was a piece of cake. Finally, we spotted land, we saw nothing but grass and gold. We ~~thought this invasion was going to be easy.~~ ^{Saw nothing but grass and gold. We thought this invasion was going to be easy.}

At last, we arrived on holy island's shore. We looked through the window and we spotted innocent monks living their day to day life. As we stormed into their house, we went around it looking for treasure. We started to take their holy books and treasure and we slaughtered people left and right.

I sharpened my axe ready for kills and ~~that's what I did I killed most of~~ ^{that's what I did I killed most of} them. I prayed to Odin and Thor to help us and everyone but that never happened. Maybe he knew what he was doing, he protected us and some of our were injured.
