

Racing across the old abandoned tracks, the train came to a stop in an icy bridge in an wasteland. The air was then consumed by a deadly sound of complete terror. Only terror. Screams from young children echoed all around, creating the situation, worse. Then an eerie feeling crawled up everyone's back, terrorising people one by one. Then lights flickered. It even made people hallucinate, thinking they saw a demonic creature. But they weren't hallucinating... Not long after, floods of ice gorged, covering all of the windows. Every liquid had transformed into cold ice. It was most likely the end for everyone. As everyone stayed, a creature was seen then trying to get inside. They had seen a black figure walk inside. It was the end. Forever...