

As they slowly stepped out their Comfy, Comfy, warm home (knowing it's going to be cold) they were greeted with a snowball in their small sacs. Annoyingly, snow kept dropping from trees and off houses. Suddenly, a cold breeze blew on the children's cheeks, so they quickly put their gloves, hats and scarves on and carried on playing and smiling. Snow got everywhere, on bushes, flowers, poles and all different other things. White, frosty snow could be seen everywhere, it was fantastic to witness! Everyone played and made snow mans, snow angels and snow balls. It was amazing! People were looking out of the windows eating cookies and drinking hot chocolate. But there was a hollow and dark pathway in the nearby forest, that nobody dared to go through. It was so peaceful since no one ever went in there. God knows what was in there! The sky beautifully gave a sign it was happy and very good. People could be seen smiling and laughing through their see-through windows and their beautiful chandeliers sparkling all around.
