

One one different morning on June 1948, The HMT Empire Windrush was taking people to Britain. The Empire Windrush ended at the Tilbury docks which was located in Essex. In the Empire Windrush in total there was 1027 Very hardworking people. The long trip to Britain was very tiring and boring. I know this people were very strong since they had to leave the place that they lived their whole entire life but they thought it was for good since they could get a better life.

On their journey to Britain, people thought they were going to be provided with stuff like a good life, better education, more opportunities and more. They were feeling excited and some of the people was feeling unhappy because they had to leave all their belonging and family and they might have been anxious since they don't know what ahead of them or what roles they are going to be given.