

Before Henry Tudor, Richard III was king and Henry Tudor wanted to be king. Henry Tudor had one mission, his mission was to get the throne and defeat Richard. During the battle of Bosworth, this took place in the fields of Leicester on the 21st August 1485, the battle had two sides red rose (Henry's side) and white rose of the house of York (Richards side).

During the early hours of dawn, both houses marched to hill of Bosworth field. Lord Stanley promised Richard 3000 more men. However he was married to Henry's Mum so he had to give the men to Henry. As a result, the men joined Henry side. Many lives were taken during the battle. In frustration, Richard and his knights went towards the battle. Moments later, Richard commanded Lord Stanley "If you don't join the battle I'll put your son in jail. but Lord Stanley said he had other sons. So Richard joined the battle on his horse. Not long after Henry's knights came and killed Richard they lifted his head and said "All hail the new king!"